

Abstract

The invention relates to the use of an aqueous solution comprising trimethyl glycine as a coolant fluid in engine applications selected from engines used in automobiles, trucks, motorcycles, aircrafts, trains, tractors, generators, compressors, from stationary engines and equipment, marine engines, power systems, industrial engines, electric engines, fuel cell engines and hybride engines.